POETRY.

ALONE.

Patient and faithful and tender and true,
Praying and thinking, and working for you—
Bearing all silently sorrow for years—
Hopefully striving to conquer my fears;
Say, did my patience, my tenderness, truth,
Merit not more than the blight of my youth?

Give me once more my wild energy back
Give me the hopes that illumined life's track;
Give me the faith that I wasted on you—
Give me the love that I squandered thereto—
You cannot; too lightly you cast them aside,
And for you and all others these feelings have died.

Yet, though the hopes that I cherished are dead,
Though the light from my spirit forever hath fled,
Tho' twas doubting in God when I doubted in you,
As my standard and type of the real and the true;
O'er the wreck of my life I would never repine,
If the peace I have lost were but added to thine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE OLD SOLDIER.

BY ALEXANDER DUMAS.

I was just eighteen years of age, and had been serving for two years, as ensign, in the Paulovsky regiment. The regiment was stationed at the great building still standing on the other side of the Champ de Mars, opposite the Summer Garden.—The Emperor Paul I. had reigned for three years, and lived in the Red Palace, which had just been completed.

One night, when I had been refused leave, owing to some boyish prank, and was alone in the guard-room, asleep, I was aroused by a voice, whose breath swept along my face, and whispered in my ear: 'Dmitri Alexandrovitch, arise and follow me."

I opened my eyes: a man was standing before me, who repeated the invitation as soon as I was awake.

'Follow you!' I repeated; 'and where to?'

'I cannot tell you. Stilll you may know that I came from the emperor.'

I shuddered. From the emperor!—What could he want of me, a poor ensign, of good family, but too remote from the throne for my name ever to have reached the emperor's ears. I remembered the gloomy Russian proverb, which originated in the time of Ivan the Terrible, 'Near the Czar, near death.' Still I dared not hesitate. I leaped from the bed and dressed myself. Then I looked attentively at the man who had come to wake me. Although wrapped in his pelisse, I fancied I could recognize an old Turkish slave, first the barber, then the favorite of the emperor. This examination, however, was not long: by prolonging it, it might have become dangerous.

'I am ready,' said I, after five minutes, as I fastened on my sword.

My discomfiture was doubled when I saw my conductor, instead of going towards the barrack-gate, descend a small staircase leading into the cellerage. He lighted our road with a species of dark lantern. After several turnings, I found myself opposite a door quite strange to me. During the entire walk we had not met a soul; the building seemed deserted. I fancied I saw two or three shadows flit past; but they disappeared in the obscurity. The door was closed; my guide rapped upon it in a peculiar way; it flew open, evidently by the assistance of some one on the other side. In truth, when we had passed, I distinctly saw a man close the door and follow us. After proceeding five hundred paces, we reached an open grating, which my guide unlocked and closed after us. I now remembered the tradition that a subterranean gallery connected the Red Palace with the Grenadiers' barracks. I saw we were following this gallery, and must be going to the palace! We arrived at a door like the one we had gone through first. My guide knocked; it opened, and we found ourselves opposite a staircase, which we ascended. It led into the office of some large building which was carefully heated:

Then all my doubts ceased; I was being taken to the emperor—to the emperor who sent to fetch me, an insignificant subaltern. I remembered the story of the young ensign whom he met in the street, and raised in less than a quarter of an hour to the rank of general: But I could not hope he summoned me for the same purpose. Whatever it might be, we soon reached a last door, before which a sentry was walking up and down. My guide put his hand on my shoulder, saying—'Take care of yourself. You will soon be in the presence of the emperor.'

He whispered to the sentry, who moved on one side. Then he opened the door by some secret spring, as it seemed to me. A little man, dressed in the Prussian fashion, with boots coming half way up his thigh, a coat falling to his spurs, and wearing a gigantic cocked hat, turned round at the noise. I recognized the emperor; it was not difficult to do so, for he reviewed us every day. I remembered that on the previous day his eye had rested upon me; he had called my captain from the ranks, and asked him some questions; then gave an officer of his suite some sharp and decided order. All this only served to increase my apprehensions.

'Sire,' my conductor said, with a bow, 'this is the young ensign with whom you desired to speak.'

The emperor drew near me, and as he was very short, he stood on the tiptoe to look at me. Doubtless he recognized me as the person he wanted, for he nodded his head, and, turning on his heels, said, 'Go!'

My guide bowed, went out, and left me alone with the emperor. I assure you I would sooner have remained alone with a lion in its den. The emperor at first appeared to pay no attention to me; he walked up and down with long strides, stopping before an open window to take a breath of fresh air; then returning to the table, he took a pinch of snuff. I had ample time to examine all the furniture and arrangements of the room, which was the one in which Paul was afterwards killed. Near one of the windows was a bureau; on it lay an open paper.

At length the emperor appeared to remember my presence, and came up to me. His face seemed to me furious as he stopped in front of me.

'Dust,' he addressed me, 'dust!—thou knowest thou art only dust, and that I am everything!'

I know not how I found strength to reply: 'You are the chosen of the Lord, the decider of the destiny of men.'

'Hum!' he growled. And turning his back on me, he began walking up and down again, taking snuff furiously, till he resumed:

'Thou knowest that, when I command, I must be obeyed without resistance, observation, or comment.'

'As one would obey God. Yes, sire, I know it.'

He looked at me fixedly. There was an expression in his eye of so strange a character that I could not endure his look. I turned away. He seemed satisfied with the influence he exercised over me; he attributed my conduct to respect, while it was disgust. Then he went to the bureau, took the paper, read it once more, folded it, placed it in an envelope, sealed it, not with the imperial cypher, but with a ring he wore on his finger. Then he came back to me.

'Remember that I have chosen thee among a thousand to execute my orders,' he said, 'because I thought they would be well executed by thee.'

'I shall ever have before my eyes the obedience I owe my emperor,' I replied.

'Good, good! remember that thou art but dust, and I am everything.'

'I await your majesty's orders.'

'Take this letter, carry it to the governor of the fortress, accompany him wherever he may be pleased to take thee, be present at what he does, and come and tell me, 'I have seen.'

I took the packet with a bow.

''I have seen'—thou understandest'—'I have seen.''

'Yes, sire.'

'Go.'

And he opened himself the door by which I had entered; my conductor was awaiting me. The emperor closed the door after me, repeating, 'Dust, dust, dust.'

I stood all amazement on the threshold.

'Come!' my conductor said to me.

We left the palace by a different route. A sledge was awaiting us in the court-yard. The gate of the palace looking on the Fontanka bridge was opened, and the sledge started at a hand gallop. We crossed the place, and reached the banks of the Neva. Our horses rushed upon the ice, and, guided by the belfry of Peter and Paul, we traversed the river. The night was gloomy, the wind howled in a mournful and terrible manner. I had scarcely noticed we had touched dry ground ere we arrived at the gates of the fortress; a soldier asked the password, and let us in. The sledge stopped at the governor's door. The word given once again, we entered his house as we done the fortress.

'By the emperor's orders.' The command soon aroused the governor, who came to us trying to hide his alarm beneath a smile. With a man like Paul there was no more security for the gaolers than for the captives, for the hangman than for the victims. My guide made the governor a sign that he had to do with me, then he regarded me with more attention; still he hesitated before addressing me—my youth doubtless surprised him. To put him at his ease, I gave him without a word the emperor's order. He took it to a light, examined the seal, and on recognizing it as the signal of a secret order, he bowed, made an almost imperceptible sign of the cross, and opened it. He read the order, then turning to me, said:

'You are to see?'

'I am to see.'

'What are you to see.'

'You know.'

'But do you know?'

'No.'

He remained for a moment in thought.

'You came in a sledge?' he asked me.

'Yes.'

'How many persons will it hold?'

'Three.'

'Does this gentleman go with us?' he asked, pointing to my conductor.

'I hesitated, not knowing what to say.

'No,' the latter replied, 'I will wait.'

'Very good. Get ready a second sledge, choose four soldiers; let one take a lever, another a hammer, and the last two hatchets.'

The man to whom the governor spoke went out directly. Then turning to me, he added—'Come, and you shall see.'

We left the room with a turnkey behind us, and walked on till we found ourselves opposite the prison. The governor pointed to a door. The jailer opened it, went in, and lighted a lantern. We went down ten steps, passed a row of dungeons, then down ten more, but did not stop. At last we descended five more, and at length stopped. The doors were numbered: the governor stopped at the one marked No. 11. He gave a silent signal: it seemed in this abode of the dead as if he had lost the power of speech. There was at this time a frost of at least twenty degrees outside. At the depth where we found ourselves it was mingled with a damp which penetrated to the bone; my marrow was frozen, and yet I wiped the prespiration from my brow. The door opened: we went down six steep and slippery steps, and found ourselves in a dungeon of six square feet. I fancied, by the light of the lantern, that I saw a human form moving in it. The governor remained on the last step, and said to the prisoner, 'Arise, and dress yourself.'

I had a curiosity to know to whom this order was addressed.

'Turn on the light,' I said to the jailer.

I then saw a thin and pallid old man rise up. He had evidently been immured in this dungeon in the same clothes he had on when arrested, but they had fallen off him piecemeal, and he was only dressed in a ragged pelisse. Through the rags his naked, bony, shivering body could be seen. Perhaps his body had been covered by splendid garments; perhaps the ribbons of the most noble orders had once crossed his panting chest. At present he was only a living skeleton, that had lost rank, dignity, and even name, and which was called No. 11. He rose and wrapped himself in the fragments of his pelisse without uttering a complaint; his body was bowed down, conquered by prison-damp, time, it might be hunger. His eye was haughty, almost menacing.

'It is good,' said the governor; 'come.'

He was the first to go out.

The prisoner threw a parting glance on his cell, his stone bench, his water-jug, and rotting straw. He uttered a sigh, yet it was impossible that he could regret anything of this. He followed the governor, and passed before me. I never shall forget the glance he turned upon me in passing, and the reproach that was concentrated in it.

'So young,' it seemed to say, 'and already obeying tyranny!'

I turned away: that glance had pierced my heart like a dagger. He passed the door of the dungeon. How long was it since he entered it? Perhaps he did not know himself. He must have ceased for a long time measuring days and nights.—On reaching the governor's door, we found two sledges waiting. The prisoner was ordered into the one that had brought us, and we followed him, the governor by his side, I in front. The other sledge was occupied by the four soldiers.

Where were we going? I knew not.—What were we going to do? I was equally ignorant. I had only to see, the action itself did not concern me.

We started. Through my position the old man's knees were beteewn mine; I felt them tremble. The governor was wrapped in his furs; I was buttoned up in my military frock, and yet the cold reached us.—The prisoner was almost naked, but the governor had offered him no coverings.—For a moment I thought of taking off my coat and offering it to him; the governor guessed my intention.

"It is not worth while," he said.

Soon we reached the Neva again, and our sledge took the direction of Cronstandt. The wind came off the Baltic, and blew furiously; the sleet cut our faces; though our eyes had grown accustomed to the darkness, we could not see ten yards before us.

At last we stopped in the midst of a furious storm. We must have been about a league and a half from St. Petersburg.—The governor got off the sledge, and went up to the other. The soldiers had already got off, each holding the tool he had been ordered to bring.

"Cut a hole in the ice," the governor said to them.

I could not restrain a cry of terror. I began to comprehend.

"Ah!" the old man muttered, with an accent resembling the laugh of a skeleton, "then the empress does remember me. I fancied she had forgotten me."

Of what empress was he talking? Three had passed away in succession, Annie, Elizabeth, and Catherine. It was evident he believed he was still living under one of them, and did not know even the name of the man who ordered his death.

What was the obscurity of the night compared to that of his tomb?

The four soldiers had set to work. They broke the ice with their hammers, cut it with their axes, and raised the blocks with the lever. All at once they started back; the ice was broken, the water was rising.

"Come down!" the governor said to the old man. The order was useless, for he had already done so. Kneeling on the ice, he was praying fervently.

The governor gave an order in a low tone to the soldiers; then he came back to my side, for I had not left the sledge. In a minute the prisoner rose, "I am ready," he said.

The four soldiers rushed upon him. I turned my eyes away; but though I did not see, I heard.

I heard the noise of a body hurled into the abyss. In spite of myself I turned round. The old man had disappeared. I forgot that I had no right to give orders, but shouted to the driver—"Away, away!"

"Stop!" cried the governor. The sledge which had already moved, stopped again.

"All is not finished," the governor said to me in French.

"What have we yet to do!" I asked.

"Wait!" he replied.

We waited half an hour.

"The ice has set, your excellency," one of the soldiers said.

"Art thou sure!"

He struck the spot where the hole had so lately yawned: the water had become solid again.

"We can go," said the governor.

The horses started at a gallop, and in less than ten minutes we had reached the fortress. There I rejoined my conductor.

"To the Red Palace!" he said to the driver.

Five minutes after the emperor's door opened again to let me pass. He was up and fully dressed, just as I had seen him the first time. He stopped before me.

"Well?" he asked.

"I have seen," I replied.

"Thou has seen, seen, seen?"

"Look at me, sire," I said to him, "and you will not doubt."

I was standing before a mirror. I looked at myself, but I was so pale, my features were so altered, that I scarce recognized myself. The emperor looked at me, and went to a second paper from the bureau where the first had lain.

"I give thee," he said, "an estate of five hundred peasents, between Troitza and Peresloft. Start this night, and never come back to St. Petersburg. If thou speakest, thou knowest how I punish. Go!"

I went. I never returned to St. Petersburg, and this is the first time I have told the story to a living soul.

I'LL BUY IT FOR YOU.—How admirably is the egotism of purse-proud vanity "taking off" by the following anecdote:

In the interior of South Carolina there lived, some years ago, an old man, very rich and very ignorant.

His only son was educated at the South Carolina College, and after graduating, was sent to Europe by his father. On his return the parent asked him what he saw in Europe. The son replied that he had seen a great many rare and wonderful things and many fine cities.

"Did you see any place you liked better than at home?" asked the old man.

"Oh yes," was the reply; "I saw London and Paris," both very fine cities."

"Which did you like best?" queried the father.

"Paris," replied the son.

"You liked Paris a great deal, did you?" continued the old man.

"Oh yes, very much."

"Then I'll buy it for you!" triumphantly replied the old gentleman.

THE PROGRESS OF THE G STEAMSHIP.—This leviathan steamer having now definitely passed into the hands of the Great Ship Company, active steps are taken in order to have the vessel ready for sea by the latter end of July, or the beginning of August. Several hundred workmen are engaged in the work, and the progress is rapid. The great shaft, weighing upwards of thirty tons, was some time since placed on board. Since that time the fitting of the machinery has progressed rapidly, and one of the masts will be set up in the course of a few days. The mast is now lying along-side the ship, and the shears are prepared for hoisting it into its place. There will be six masts to the ship, three of iron and three of wood: Those in the neighborhood of the funnels will be of iron, the foremasts of wood. The necessity of having iron masts will be readily understood when it is remembered that the furnaces, burning some 250 tons of coal per day, will send enormous heat through the monster funnels. It happens at times that it is necessary to cut away the masts, and when they are of timber there is an obvious mode of accomplishing this object. Masts of iron do not, however, afford the same facilities; but this difficulty is to be overcome by a screw of enormous power, which placed on the deck and attached to the masts, will, when set in motion, crush in the iron sides, and let the towering iron columns fall overboard. A very ingenious arrangement for fastening the rigging to the masts is to be adopted, which, in the event of its being necessay to send the masts overboard, will afford facilities for immediately letting go all the ropes. The shrouds and stays will be secured to iron rings so constructed as readily to open when required, but on other occasions holding with a firmness which defies any amount of strain which might be brought to bear upon them. The whole of the rigging will be of iron wire. The main and topmast yards of the square-rigged masts will be of iron, and the length of the main yard 120 feet, or very nearly forty feet longer, and several times as strong as the main yard of the largest line-of-battle ship afloat. It has been finally decided that Portland, in the State of Maine, shall be the port to which the Great Eastern will make its first voyage.

TAKING IT COOLLY.—A traveler on the Western waters tells the following:

"Mr. Barnes, wife and two children, his niece and another young lady, with the writer, formed a party leaving for Clarksville, Tennessee, in the beginning of the summer of 1827. Arriving at Smithland, we were compelled to take a smaller boat on account of the extreme lowness of the Cumberland River. Such was found on the Nettie Miller, a very nice little stern-wheeler. We were proceeding on our way rejoicing, when suddenly we were thrown out of our rests and brought up all standing in the middle of the state rooms. All the gentlemen rushed out in dishabille to learn the trouble, and were frankly told by the captain that the boat was badly snagged, and would sink in a few minutes! Mr. Barnes flew with alarm to his wife and the young ladies, seized his children, deposited them safely in a wood boat, which the Nettie had in tow, and ran back. Surprised not to see any of the ladies out yet, he rushed to his wife's room, and found her quietly washing her face and hands.

"Why, my dear, the boat will sink in less than three minutes.

"Well," she replied, "I think I can be out before that time."

Dragging her along, he rushed almost frantic with excitement to the young ladies' room, and found them very quietly combing their hair!

"For Heaven's sake!" says he, "young ladies, what do you mean? The boat will sink in two minutes, and here you are combing your hair."

"Why, uncle," said the niece, "you didn't expect us to go out there before all the young men with our hair in this fix, did you?"

THE BISHOP OF LONDON PREACHING IN AN OMNIBUS YARD.—A remarkable gathering of the men connected with the "Favorite" omnibuses assembled on Sunday evening, 3d of April, in a carriage shed at the depot in Upper street, Islington. The largest building in the yard, specially prepared for the purpose, was crowded to excess by a most attentive auditory. During the past four years a religious service has been conducted on every Sunday morning, for the benefit of these men, by a clergyman resident in the parish. At eight o'clock on Sunday night the service commenced with a hymn, which was very heartily sung, then followed the litany read by the honorary chaplain. Another hymn having been sung, the bishop read, of St. John's Gospel, and then preached for an hour from the 14th verse. The sermon was admirably adapted to the occasion, and was listened to throughout with breathless attention.

ELIZABETH CITY:

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 24, 1859.

DEMOCRATIC DISTRICT CONVENTION.

The Democratic Convention to nominate a candidate to represent the first Congressional District of North Carolina in the thirty-sixth Congress of the U. States, will be held in EDENTON, on THURSDAY, the 26th of May, the day after to-morrow.

GO! GO!! GO!!! GO!!!!

☞ Four years ago, we were returning from Edenton, when we met several gentlemen. from Pasquotank, going, we knew not where. We had some curiosity upon the subject, for it was a little strange to see so many wending their way in the same direction; so we drew reins upon our steed, and enquired diligently for the point of destination and the object of the journey. We parted company as we met, for not one word of information could we gather from any one of these mysterious travelers. A few days passed by and the secret was let out. They were delegates to a Know Nothing Council, about to assemble in Windsor, for the purpose of bringing out a candidate for Congress. Every thing about the matter had been secret, the appointment of delegates was secret, the journey was secret, and the meeting of the Council was secret, strange, and mysterious. The Council met, and a member of their own fraternity was nominated, for the oath then required that an 'American' should be voted for by members of the order. Two years more and an open convention of 'Americans' was held in Edenton, and a gentleman who had never affiliated with them was the favorite one for the suffrages of these simon pure 'Americans,' the oath to the contrary notwithstanding. Two years more has rolled over, and another convention meets to-day in Winton to nominate a Congressional candidate. Would the assemblage be recognized as a part and parcel of the same organization which met in Windsor? Would the individuals congregated in Winton, be taken for those who by signs and secret pass-words had made their way into a Know-nothing council, four years ago for the same business for which they are this day gathered together? Yet such is the fact. They are one and the same. They have now no signs, grips, passwords, or oaths—that we are aware of. They were 'Americans' then, and swore that none but 'Americans should rule America.' Now they are 'Opposition,' and nothing else. Why all these changes? Why this repeated alteration of name?—Why this advocacy of one thing to-day and another to-morrow? Why, in the name of all that is honest, do not our opponents, if they are moved to action by a sincere and earnest desire to advance the interests of the country, believing that the policy of the Democratic party is not calculated to promote that end, stand steadfast upon some particular platform, lay down a line of governmental polity and fight it out to the bitter end? Does not this continued shifting and turning show a contempt of the popular intelligence and a belief in their liability to be gulled, duped, and imposed upon? Surely it does; and with every change we find by their loss of strength that the people are becoming alive to the estimate in which they are held by their 'Whig,' 'Know Nothing,' 'American Whig,' 'Opposition' leaders.

FUSION.

To unite 'all the elements' of the opposition against the Democracy, is boldly avowed as the intention of the Southern Know Nothings by the leaders, press, and spokesmen of that delectable party. Greely & Co., propose the same thing, and if the terms for a division of the spoils can be arranged, all obstacles to the amalgamation will be at once removed. That will be the only bone of contention; upon all other points there is a wonderful disposition to be accommodating. Greely has become excessively condescending; he has declared his willingness to support either Botts, Bell, or Crittenden for the presidency—perhaps he might do so. Southern Know Nothings have not the slightest objection to a 'conservative Statesman' from the North, even though he be from the ranks of Black Republicanism. Ignore the slavery question, and it will be all right.—The object of the philosopher, of the Tribune is clear; his trap is set for the unsuspecting Know Nothings, the bait is tempting, and in their anxiety for the spoils, we should be surprised if they are not caught. Will the Southern 'Opposition' pledge themselves to abide the action of a national convention? Certainly they will, when Greely promises to vote for Botts, Bell or Crittenden, IF nominated. How can they refuse so fair an offer? Is it not reasonable? Very reasonable. Come gentlemen, do pledge yourselves, and oblige the patriotic old man, and thus secure the victory of 1860. It is your only chance; will you do it? No fears for the free soilers, for rest assured, that if you can out vote them in Convention, they will yield like men and support your Southern candidate. Only agree to stand by the nominee, and the thing is fixed; you can shake hands with Seward, Greely & Co., and go on your way singing—

How delightful 'tis to see
Sambo and Sam once more agree.

DISTRICT CONVENTION.

Before another issue of our paper, the Democracy of the district will have met in Convention, and selected their standard bearer for the campaign now about to commence. On Thursday we are to assemble in Edenton to declare once more our abiding confidence and unwavering faith in the fidelity, honesty, and capacity of him who has served us so well in the past, and to bid him again go forth as the chosen one to bear our banner to a glorious victory.

As the day for the gathering approaches, the feelings of the Democracy begin to warm up, and we now have every assurance that in numbers, talent, and respectability the Convention on Thursday will equal, if it does not surpass, any other that has ever been held in the district.—The information that we have received from the different counties incline us to this opinion, and we hail it as a harbinger of an overwhelming triumph in August. 'When aroused the Democracy are invincible,' is a remark that has been often repeated and never falsified. When we are beaten it is by our lukewarmness and over confidence in our strength. Supineness and lethargy has sometimes produced our temporary overthrow. The signs of the times indicate a general activity in our ranks, and a warming up to a defence of the good old cause. We expect not only a large Convention, but an enthusiastic one. Come, brother Democrats, one and all; there is room enough; the staunch old Democracy of Chowan will give you a cordial reception, and we promise, in their name, that you will not regret your visit Let us see who shall have the largest delegation. Halifax, we understand, intends to enter for the honor, but she must muster strong or Bertie will carry off the prize.—Other counties are moving, and both Halifax and Bertie, may yet be distanced.

THE WHEAT CROP.

The recent warm rains have made some slight improvement in the wheat crop, though the damage is still considerable.—The fall off may even exceed a third. In some places, we are sorry to see, it has been attacked by the caterpillar. In passing the farm of Mr. William Nixon, between E. City and Hertford, we noticed myriards of this destructive worm upon the stalk and head of the wheat, whilst the road was nearly black with them for a half mile as they were making their way to the corn field of Mr. James Newbold. Mr. Newbold had dug a shallow ditch and threw up the bank to stop their progress, still many of them had surmounted the obstacle and made a vigorous attack upon the young corn. We left him busy in defending his breast-works.

HO! FOR THE CONVENTION.

Democrats of Pasquotank, on next Thursday you will be called upon to meet in Convention with your brethren from other sections of the district, to designate by your votes, the man that you will have as your candidate for a seat in the next Congress of the United States. It is requisite that there should be a full Convention that its influence may be felt more powerfully, and we therefore urge upon you to attend. Go as many as can. The distance is but short, and the loss of time immaterial.—REMEMBER THURSDAY, THE 26TH!!

☞ We last week paid a flying visit to Gates county—County Court being in session at the time. We had the pleasure of meeting many good and staunch democrats, and found them in the best possible spirits and confident of victory in the coming fight. They assured us old Gates would do her whole duty, and we should have a good account from her in August.

MAY FESTIVAL.

Refer to the notice of the May Festival, to be observed by the young ladies of Miss Sanderson's school. We are obliged to the accomplished teacher for an invitation to be present, and regret that attendance upon the Edenton Convention, will deprive us of the pleasure of being present.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK. We are in receipt of the June number of Godey. This simple announcement will put all our lady friends who subscribe for it, in extacies, for they look forward to its arrival with the same degree of pleasure that they do that of some highly cherished friend. Well it is here, and as rich as usual.

FAYETTEVILLE CAROLINIAN.

This able and influential Democratic paper is now being issued daily, the first number of which is before us. We congratulate our contemporaries upon the prosperity which has at attended their labors in the publication of their weekly, and wish success in their new enterprise.

MILITARY COMPANY.

A volunteer company is being organized in our town. A meeting was held on Friday, at which W. F. Martin, Esq. and Capt. W. E. Mann, made eloquent and patriotic speeches. Some sixty names, we believe, are already enrolled.

ARTHUR'S HOME MAGAZINE, for June, is likewise before us, and, as usual, comes laden with its invaluable treasure. We know of no periodical that we would recommend higher than Arthur's.

☞ The May party of Miss Mollie Saunderson's School will come off on Thursday the 26th inst. Coronation to take place under the large Oak near Dr. R. K. Speed's residence, at 5 o'clock p. m. The party to be at the house between Mrs. M. Palmer's and Jas. S. Cartwright's residence.

HALIFAX COUNTY.

A gentleman well informed as to the public sentiment of Halifax, gives it as his candid opinion, that in that county, Shaw will certainly get Gov. Ellis' majority, which was 301.

WAR NEWS.

The latest war news will be found in our columns to-day. The belignents have certainly met upon the field of battle, but the particulars have not yet come to hand.

FIRE ENGINES.

Mr. W. H. Clark has purchased two handsome fire engines for the Town, with some five hundred yards of hose, all of which will be here in a few days.

MAY FESTIVAL.

Business called us from the city on Tuesday last, consequently we were denied the pleasure of accepting the invitation so kindly and modestly presented to us by the young ladies of the Methodist School, to witness the ceremonies of their May Festival. We should have gathered enough however, for a notice, had not a correspondent furnished us with the following, which we cheerfully endorse, except the insinuation that we—the Editor—"might have admired the table more" than "the little sparkling eyes and smiling countenances." This is a slander, and, we are tempted to believe, a malicious effort to injure us with our little friends. We really think that the table would have been forgotten by us altogether in admiration of the little beauties that figured around it.

MAY FESTIVAL.

MR. EDITOR:—Among all the pleasant things that have transpired in our town, within the last few months, the entertainment given by the young ladies of the Methodist School, on Tuesday evening, the 17th inst., stands pre-eminent.

By the time the appointed hour arrived, quite a crowd had collected in the Academy yard to witness the ceremonies.

We had waited some time for them to commence, and were getting a little impatient, when some one near me cried: 'Look, they come!' I did look, and

"Stood like one bewitched,
And thought my very e'en enriched."

I almost believed myself in the "Fairy Land." And you could not have wondered at it; for there came from their schoolroom, some twenty-five or thirty Misses, "all arrayed in spotless white," with green wreaths, strewed with flowers of every hue, running "up and down and all around" their dresses, and beautiful wreaths or crowns circling their brows, white clustering ringlets fell in rich profusion 'round their snowy necks.

Can you imagine anything prettier? I am not in the habit of going off into ecstacies about anything beautiful I may behold; but I was certainly delighted with the enchanting scene, as was also every other beholder.

There were five queens; one for each of the four seasons, and the 'fair queen of the rolling year.'

Queen of Spring, Miss Eugenia Hinton; Queen of Summer, Miss Boggs Laboyteaux; Queen of Autumn, Miss Fenie Turner; Queen of Winter, Miss Clinnie Richardson; Queen of the year, Miss Alice Grandy. Miss Georgie Herrington was Queen Sister. Miss Sarah Grandy, Crowner.—Miss Jennie Newbold, Sceptre bearer, and Miss Ophelia Chapman, Lady of Hope.

The most of them made short and appropriate addresses to their Queen, who, in her turn, addressed her subjects in a beautiful speech of some length, which she delivered in a decidedly queenly manner.

Each one, 'from the least to the greatest,' went through their parts with great ease and promptness, without making the slightest mistake—all reflecting great credit upon the estimable, intelligent, and accomplished young ladies, from whom they received their instruction and training.

The matronly countenances around gave decided tokens of satisfaction and pleasure, and the whole audience seemed lost in admiration.

A slight shower of rain coming up just as the queen of the year ended her address to her fair subjects, tended to accelerate our movements homeward, in a manner rather inconsistent with the dignity of some of us, though I venture to say, in perfect keeping with the joyousness of our feelings at the time.

You, Mr. Editor, had you been present, though I know you to be a great admirer of pretty little sparkling eyes, and smiling countenances—might have admired the table more; for upon it were tastily arranged dainties of infinite variety and great abundance.

The lassies and laddies sang and played and enjoyed themselves till ten o'clock, when they all retired to their homes, 'contented and happy and free.' To each of them, boy and girl, I would say,

'Thine be every joy and pleasure,
Peace, enjoyment, love and treasure,

O'B. W.

WELDON, N. C. May 18, 1859.

This being the week of our County Court, I have been absent both Monday and Tuesday, and shall go down again in a few minutes.

There are very few people in attendance, and the business is of trivial importance, and money is almost as scarce as hen's teeth. Politics seem very quiet, but, arrangements were made among the Delegates, to start down to Edenton on Tuesday, so as to reach there on Wednesday afternoon, and be ready for business early Thursday morning. Halifax and Northampton will both send good delegations, and they will not only evince their regard for Dr. Shaw in this way, but also by the manner in which they will pile up their votes at the Ballot Box in August next.

Besides Court, there was a Fair in full blast at Halifax, under the auspices of the ladies. It was gotten up for the purpose of aiding in the erection of a Baptist church, and alike creditable, commendable, and successful.

The weather is gloomy, cloudy and rainy, and the health of the community, though generally good, has suffered somewhat of late quite seriously. The diseases are mostly Pneumonia, Quinzy, and that other disease for which Worthington's Cholera Medicine is a sovereign Panecea.

We are all getting right again now, and with proper care and prudence, we shall, I hope, do well, both now and hereafter. In haste,

RIP SLAP.

MILITARY MEETING.

At a meeting of the Citizens of Elizabeth City, held at the Court House, Friday, May 20th, 1859, William F. Martin, Esq., was called to the Chair, and Dr. J. T. P. C. Cohoon requested to act as Secretary. The Chairman explained the object of the meeting, in a most beautiful, sublime, eloquent, and patriotic speech, setting forth in the most powerful and thrilling language, the necessity of raising a Military Corps in our midst; he spared none, but his speech told on all, from youth to hoary age.

C. W. Grandy followed in one of his happiest efforts, and as the patriotic enthusiasm, which fills his very soul, swelled from his mouth, every sentence was met by the applause and cheers of the assemblage.

Next, followed that long tried and well known champion of Militaryism, Captain Wm. E. Mann. His speech was as usual characterized by telling 'hits' at our citizens in regard to their want of ardor and zeal in this great and important affair.—The meeting being declared open for business; moved, &c., that a Committee of seven be appointed to draft a Constitution and By-Laws, for the government of said Corps, and report at an adjourned meeting, Committee, Messrs. Wm. E. Mann, C. W. Grandy, Dr. Thos. Cohoon, Wm. Glover, Griffin M. Jennings, D. B. Bradford, and Wm. E. Vaughan. The Chairman was added by a unanimous vote. A Committee of five was also appointed to solicit names and donations, and make enquiries in relation to muskets, and attend to all other business for the good of the Corps—the Committee are Messrs. J. B. Lyon, R. G. Holmes, J. B. Fearing, J. B. Carter and C. G. Elliott. Moved that the proceedings be published in the papers of the town—vote of thanks to the gentlemanly Musicians, who so kindly favored us with soul stirring martial music. Next meeting May 28th, Saturday next, at 8 o'clock, P. M.

The following preamble and resolutions were introduced by M. Bowen, and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we the Democracy of Lees Mills, renew our pledge of devotion to the principles of Democracy; a just regard for the rights of the States; the preservation of the Constitution, and the vindication of our national supremacy on the American Continent.

Resolved, That we are now as ever opposed to all internal improvements, either by the Federal or State government; to the distribution of the proceeds of the public lands; to all protective Tariffs or specific duties to enrich the manufacturer at the expense of the consumer, and to the exercise of all doubtful Constitutional powers.

Resolved, That we are in favor of cheap postage, and that branch of the public service should be protected in a principle laid down by the great American Statesman (Thos. Jefferson,) that to educate and inform the masses of the people, enable them to see that it is their interest to preserve peace and order, and they will do it as to being the only sure reliance for the preservation of civil and religious liberty.

Resolved, That we again recommend to the favorable consideration of the Convention, the name of that patriot and statesman H. M. Shaw, and promise him a cordial support on the first Thursday in August next.

"WICKED AND CORRUPT ADMINISTRATION."

This is the tune which all the republican organs are playing. The federalists commenced it under Jefferson's administration. With great unction they pronounced it "wicked and corrupt." Jefferson they declared was an infidel—a Jacobin—and they said he certainly would ruin the county. The political descendents of the opposition to the democracy in Jefferson's day, now known as republicans, know-nothing, or opposition, are now busily engaged in singing hosannas to the great apostle of democracy. What fools or what hypocrites! This thread bare charge of "wicked and corrupt" has been applied by the opposition to every democratic administration.—But under democratic rule the country has enlarged her borders and prospered in an unexampled degree. In the face of these charges the people, too, have manifested their confidence in the integrity and administrative ability of the democratic party by continuing it in power, with few short intervals, since the organization of the Government. The charge of "wicked and corrupt administration" comes with ill grace from a party whose leader, Seward, has voted for every extravagant appropriation which has been presented to Congress since he has been a member, and whose bosom friend, Mattison, another republican leader, had "corruption" proven upon him.—Whatever of "extravagance," of "wickedness," or "corruption" which can be charged against any democratic administration can be traced to opposition origin.

ARRIVAL OF SEVENTY FUGITIVE SLAVES IN CANADA.—The Detroit Advertiser of Saturday says:—"We learn upon reliable authority that seventy fugitive slaves arrived in Canada by one train, from the interior of Tennessee. This is probably the largest number that ever escaped in one company. But a week before a company of twelve arrived, and are now at the depot near Malden. Nearly the same time one of seven, and another of five, safely landed on the free soil of Canada, making ninety-four in all, worth at the present market price the handsome sum of $64,000."

CROPS, &c.—A letter from Henry county, Va., says that all kinds of provisions are scarce, and corn is selling at $8 per barrel. The Wheat crop looks fine and tobacco plants are forward.

SENTENCE OF DEATH.—Two negroes owned by G. B. Nichols, of Henry county, Va., have been sentenced to be hung on the 17th inst., for poisoning their master with strychnine. The poison did not prove fatal.

DEMOCRATIC MEETING IN NORTHAMPTON.

At a meeting of the Democrats of Northampton, held in Jackson, the 2d inst., the following proceedings were had:

Capt. Jos M. S. Rogers was called to the Chair, and William T. Josey, appointed Secretary. The Chairman explained the object of the meeting, and on motion a committee of the following gentlemen was appointed to prepare resolutions. W. S. Copeland, T. J. Person, B. F. Lockhart, Jos. R. Mason and W. W. Peebles. The committee retired, and the meeting was entertained in brief speeches from Messrs. Ransom, Bachelor, Jenkins, and Moore. Ex-Governor Bragg being in town, a committee was appointed to wait on him and request him to address the meeting. He soon appeared, and made a short but thrilling speech, mainly referring to his former associations with the county, and his obligations to the people with whom he had so long lived. The committee returned and reported the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we approve entirely of holding a Democratic Convention of this Congressional District at Edenton, on the 26th inst., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congeess, and that we will heartily support the nominee of said Convention.

Resolved, That we cordially approve the able and faithful course of our representative in Congress, the Hon H. M. Shaw, and we hereby tender to him our thanks for his fidelity to the rights and interests of this people, and his unwavering devotion to the constitution.

Resolved, That the Chairman appoint fifty delegates to attend the Convention.—The following gentlemen were appointed:

Thos. G. Tucker, Jos. R. Mason, Dr John Moore, John Pugh, Hartwell Harding, W. Garris, John Pope, Arthur Long, Jas. Good, Absalom Harris, Jas. Harding, James Garris, John Long, B. F. Lockhart, Dr. James Johnson, Gen. T. J. Person, Jas. Lockhart, Thos. Jordon, A. J. Jordon, B. Sikes, B. F. Jordon, Dr. Junius Ramsey, Dr. John Jordon, John Rogers, Jos. Rogers, Gen. M. W. Ransom, W. M. Crocker, Dr. John Foster, W. W. Peebles, Dr W. S. Copeland, H. Spivey, G. Grant, Francis M Spivey, John Pledger, Cornelius Lassiter, Dr. C. G. C. Moore, N. Baum, R. Baum, L. Futrell, M. W. Smallwood, H. Gatling, E. Blanchard, J. Blanchard, Giles Joyner, Isaac Baum, Abram Stephens, Wm. Sikes, L. Smith, Richard Taylor and W. J. Edwards.

On motion, it was agreed that all good Democrats of the county, who will attend the Convention, shall act as delegates.

On motion the Chairman and Secretary were added to the list

The meeting then adjourned.

THE IMPENDING WAR IN EUROPE.

The news from Europe, which we published yesterday morning, although showing that war does not yet actually exist, leaves but a slender hope of the continuance of peace. In view, therefore, of the critical state of affairs, the following brief review of past wars between Austria and France will refresh the memory of the reader:

WARS IN THE PAST BETWEEN FRANCE AND AUSTRIA.

Within the last seventy years there have been five wars between France and Austria on the continent of Europe. Austria was one of the first nations that took up arms against the French revolution. In connection with Prussia, in 1792, her armies invaded France. After a desperate struggle they were driven out by the energy of the French republican assembly, and by the valor and military skill of General Demourier. The French Assembly, by a conscription, called out one million two hundred thousand men for the defence of the country, a military exertion which has seldom, if ever, been equaled in military annals.

Prussia and Spain withdrew from the coalition, and, in 1796, Austria was left to sustain the shock of the French in Italy.—She was supported by the King of Sardinia, a State which is now her bitter enemy. The French army, under Napoleon, in two campaigns, detached Sardinia from her alliance, drove her troops out of Italy, and pursued them into Germany, nearly to the gates of Vienna. Under the walls of that capital France dictated peace to Austria in 1797. By that peace she made large cessions of territory and influence in Germany. As a recompense Napoleon assigned her Venice and Lombardy, and first made her an Italian power.

In 1799, Austria and Russia took up arms against France, and for a time were very successful. They drove the French out of Italy. In the latter part of that year, however, Napoleon returned from Egypt. He induced the Russian Emperer Paul to withdraw from the Austrian alliance. Having accomplished this he led his army into Italy. On the plains of Marengo he fought a decisive battle, the result of which expelled Austria from Italy. It was soon followed up by the victory of Hohenlinden, in Germany, gained by the French under General Moreau. The French columns were again near Vienna, and again France compelled Austria to sue for peace. In 1804 the Emperer of France became the King of Italy. Immediately after Austria and Russia attacked France. Such however, was the power of the latter, that in six months one Austrian army was destroyed at Ulm, and another, together with the Russians, destroyed at Austerlitz. The French entered Vienna and again dictated a peace.

In 1800 Austria and France again met in collision on the tented field. The French, however, under Napoleon, marched down the valley of the Danube with the velocity, almost, of the wind, and in one campaign took up their quarters in Vienna. A severe and ignominious peace for Austria was the result. In 1813, Austria, united with all the great powers of Europe, overthrew the French empire, and broke down the power which had so often entered the gates of Vienna in triumph. By the treaties of 1814 and 1815 the northern States of Italy, Venice and Lombardy were ceded to Austria by the leading nations of Europe. It is now on the faith of these treaties that Austria rests her case, and appeals to the rest of Germany and to England to assist her in maintaining them inviolate. As they were the treaties which witnessed the humiliation of his uncle, Louis Napoleon has no great respect for them.—Cin. Enquirer.

A GREAT HAIL STORM.—A storm recently took place at [illegible] Ky. A correspondent has sent the following particulars to the [illegible] ville Mercury:

Three of the stones were [illegible] inches. Others, apparently of [illegible] mensions, were broken to pieces. Upon close examination these were found to be porous in texture centre, and, in some instances [illegible] The weight of one, some of storm, was equal to one pound. ture of the stones clearly indicates had been formed gradually by [illegible] cessions, or the union of several frozen together.

The descending of these [illegible] masses of ice is said to have spectacle truly magnificent—splendor. Tin roofs were indented panes of glass were broken out dows of one of the hotels, and outright on the street. The from the northwest. Thunder and but little wind accompanied shower, which lasted nearly half In less than an hour this shower ed by another with some wind, the southwest. Of the extent destruction of these storms I means of information.

Of the phenomenal character necessary to say, that the stone varies in size from that of partridge egg. During a terrific near Lyons, in France, it is said hail stones fell as large as a hen's egg, the circumference of [illegible] from 5 to 6 inches. In 1847, town of McDonough, in stones fell of extraordinary stated to have measured 10 in eumference. There is a case a storm that occurred at Cazo in 1829, in which masses of upward of four pounds, fell.

From these facts, it may be the Madisonville hail storm remarkable, and, so far as my extends, without a parallel in of hail storm in this country.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.—THE subscriber offers for sale his FARM situated in Craven County, on lower Broad and Orchard Creeks, near Neuse River, seven miles from the town of Jackson, containing 2500 acres, more or less, several hundred of which are prime Swamp Land, about 200 acres cleared, the remainder in woods, which is excellent timber, suitable for building or ship purposes.—There are about 100 acres ditched, deadened, under-bushed and the cord wood cut; a small amount of labor would prepare it for cultivation. There are also two crops of Turpentine Boxes on it.

The Land is well adapted to Cotton, Corn, Wheat, Potatoes, &c., and is highly susceptible of improvement. The facilities for shipping are rarely equalled.

The improvements consist of a fine large Dwelling, Kitchen, Smoke-House, Gin-House, Barns, Stables, and Negro Houses sufficient to accommodate Fifty Negroes, together with all other necessary out-buildings, in good order. The Garden and Orchard abound in a great variety of the choicest Fruits, viz: Grapes, Figs, Raspberries, Strawberries, Cherries, Apples, Pears and Peaches. Oysters and Fish may be taken in abundance from the creek at the back of the garden, and Wild Fowl, in great variety, abound in the vicinity.—There is also a good mill site, with dam already constructed on the place. There is a good well of water in the yard.

The premises have the reputation of being healthy and the situation is desirable, and my only object in desiring to sell is the fact that I intend to quit farming.

Persons wishing to buy can apply to me on the premises, or to J. Gooding, sr., at Newbern.

THE WEEKLY STATES,

PUBLISHED BY
PRYOR & HEISS,
AT
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Subscription price - - - - $1 00 per year.

With the view of securing the largest possible circulation among the masses of the people, the proprietors of The States have determined to reduce the price of the Weekly paper to

ONE DOLLAR PER ANNUM.

The States will be conducted with an exclusive regard to the principles of the State-rights Democracy, will be independent of factions, and unbiassed by partial interests—in short, will continue on the line it has pursued under its present management. We presume it has given a sufficient exemplification of its principles and objects to dispense with the necessity of any formal profession.

Located at the Federal Capital, The States has great advantages over other journals in procuring important and valuable information relating to the affairs of government. Its central position also enables it to procure at the earliest moment the latest foreign and domestic news, and in its columns will always be found matters of interest appertaing to Literature, Agriculture, and Commerce

The price of subscription is fixed so low, that it brings the paper within the reach of every person who desires a good and reliable newspaper. We therefore appeal to our Democratic friends throughout the country to aid us in securing The States an extended circulation.

To those who will take the trouble of getting us up a club of ten subscribers, at the rate of one dollar per year for each subscriber, we will send a copy of the Weekly States for one year gratis.

Payments in all cases required in advance.

Current money in the different States received in payment for subscriptions.

All letters should be addressed to
Pryor & Heiss.

A VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE
IN NORFOLK CO., VA.

IT lies on the Dismal Swamp Canal, about 7 miles from Deep Creek and 14 from Norfolk, and contains from 1200 to 1500 acres, about 150 to 200 of which are now in arable order, the balance in original forest.

The soil is adapted to the production of Indian corn and other crops usually cultivated in that section. About 5 or 600 acres of the tract would make as fine a farm as any in Eastern Virginia; adjoining lands of similar quality unimproved, have produced from 14 to 15 barrels of corn per acre, and the wood and timber on the land would pay every expense of clearing, when it would be worth $50 per acre.

It presents, also, great facilities for carrying on the wood business. Immense quantities of the best quality could be sold at paying prices at Norfolk or on the Canal bank, along which the land stretches for several miles. The facilities of water carriage would also render the trucking business profitable.

There is a large Juniper swamp on the tract, valuable for its rail and shingle timber.

The pasturage and range for Stock is unsurpassed. A free School is within one mile of the dwelling. Persons desirous of purchasing are referred to Messrs. George T. Wallace and John West, who live near the place, and to Mr. Benjamin T. Tatem, near Norfolk, who will take pleasure in showing the land.

For further information and terms, which will be liberal, apply to

JOSEPH T. TATEM.

INFIRMARY FOR SLAVES.
ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

THE SUBSCRIBER has opened at the Marine Hospital (in a separate building) an INFIRMARY FOR INVALID SLAVES. He has ample accommodations for a limited number, and will give them his careful attention—supplying them with every necessary their case requires. An Institution of this kind offers many advantages to masters having servants afflicted with chronic or surgical diseases. And, from its economy, they are relieved of the expense and annoyance of having such upon a plantation.

The charges for Board, Medical attendance, Nursing, and Medicine, are $6 per week, payable upon the removal of the patient.

In cases requiring a surgical operation, in addition to the above rate, a fee varying from $2 to $30, in different cases, will be charged for the operation, the particulars of which may be ascertained upon application at the Infirmary.

The services of any other regular Physician will be allowed, at the expense of the master.

Persons in the country desiring to send patients to the Infirmary, or obtain information concerning it, may address the subscriber.

☞ No contagious diseases admitted.

DR. J. C. AYER: I do not hesitate to say the best remedy I have ever found for Coughs, Hoarseness, Influenza, and the concomitant symptoms of a Cold, is your CHERRY PECTORAL. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years has shown it to possess superior virtues for the
